The N.C. Chapter of the U.S. National Committee for United Nations Women invites you to our learning and engagement luncheon “Learn Like a Girl: Gender, Education, Empowerment” on Tuesday, September 22, 2015, Noon – 2PM (door opens 11:30 AM), at the North Carolina Executive Mansion.

The program features local, national and international policymakers whose work impacts educational opportunities for women and girls including Andrea Conner, founder of Learn and Lead Globally; Renee Ellmers, U.S. Representative for North Carolina; and Josh Stein, North Carolina Senator and Minority Whip. The panel discussion will be moderated by Tina Wilson, IBM Manager of Corporate Citizenship & Affairs. This program gives us the opportunity to explore what we know about the undeniable links between educational access and life-long economic, political and personal achievement for women, their families and their communities.

Tickets for “Learn Like a Girl: Gender, Education, Empowerment” are $30.00 per person general; $20.00 for students.
